Savannah Jackson is a photographer, videographer, graphic designer, and social media content creator from Williamsburg, Virginia. She has an associate's degree in Graphic Design and Studio Arts, with a specialization in Photography. Her love for photography and social media began in high school when she worked as an assistant for a professional photographer.

Landscape photography and capturing nature in its natural light, as well as documenting candid moments between families and couples, are her passions. Her approach to capturing those raw, genuine emotions led to her business's catchphrase: "Capturing the moment. Creating a Memory."

Savannah draws inspiration from Marc Adamus Photography and Jessi Marie Photography. Although they differ in subject and category, each create mesmerizing images with a captivating natural palette and a sense of beauty.
